COLLECTION™

Bellevue Square Bellevue Place Lincoln Square

Dear Bellevue Downtown Reader,

As our summer wanes, leaves fall and air turns crispy and cool, you have a bounty of ways to warm up your days and nights in the DTB. This issue highlights many extraordinary fall events, from the fundraisers in support of great local causes to The Bellevue Collection's Fashion Week to spooktacular Halloween festivities.

Downtown Bellevue proudly welcomes the biennial Bellwether Sculpture Exhibition, featuring the work of 32 artists displayed in public spaces across Downtown. Take advantage of lunchtime guided art walks through the city; see p. 12 for the details. Head over to the Bellevue Botanical Garden to stroll through its changing colors and rock-sculpted waterfalls and over the suspension bridge.

For many of us, the season brings on cravings satisfied only by a locally-sourced, harvest-inspired fall menu. Our favorite Downtown restaurants will serve up delectable dishes made with fresh ingredients from Pacific Northwest farms. Visit the Bellevue Farmers Market while you can! Not only can you chow down at one of the vendors or fill your baskets with beautiful seasonal items, you can donate fresh and canned food via baskets at the market's booth.

On a final note, we encourage you to make Downtown Bellevue your stay and play destination for all of your back-to-school shopping and entertainment needs. There's no better place, and we've avoided this word until now: cornucopia. Enjoy the options!

Weekend Fun

BY DEANNA DUFF

Fill your weekend with fun! Downtown Bellevue offers something for everyone whether you're planning a weekend with family, friends or flying solo. Kick back and relax at the spa or hit the ground running for an afternoon at the Bellevue Botanical Garden — a day of adventure awaits from dawn to dusk!

Fresh Air Fun

Bask in Bellevue's natural, outdoor beauty while exploring the 53-acre Bellevue Botanical Garden. Meditate in the Alpine Rock Garden or delight in fall's rainbow of colors in the Dahlia Display. A leisurely, half-mile stroll from the Visitor's Center takes you across a sweeping ravine and suspension bridge. Hungry after your stroll? Head to 99 Park Restaurant for brunch, lunch or dinner. Celebrate the abundance of the season fresh on your plate. Farm-fresh flavors range from flaky salmon to San Juan halibut and off-the-vine, heirloom tomatoes. Grab a seat on the patio or enjoy the outdoors inside — the furniture is made from local, reclaimed wood!

Romance Revelry

Love is in the air! Start the day with your sweetheart at Fran's Chocolates in Old Bellevue. Sip an iced, Venezuelan dark drinking chocolate while savoring the sunshine thanks to outdoor seating. When temperatures drop, head inside for a Tea & Chocolate tasting or sample handmade truffles, chocolate-covered fruits and figs from the confection case. Fran's new seasonal collections promise something new for every romantic mood. Let the good times roll at Lucky Strike! It's a swanky, adult update to your best teenage memories — bowl a few games, hit the dance floor, test your arcade game skills and refuel with one of their hand-crafted cocktails. End your date night with dinner at Black Bottle. The gastropub is perfect for a laid back, cozy meal of shared plates ranging from avocado fries to flatbreads, gourmet tacos and sweet treats.

Brunch & BFFs

Plan a day of pampering with your BFFs! Yuan Spa is a sanctuary of relaxation from massage to hydrotherapy and manicures. All spa packages include a complimentary lunch and guests are welcome to bring their own wine or champagne — a toast to tranquility! After, spend the afternoon exploring Old Bellevue. Gilbert's on Main is an old-school delicatessen abuzz with good food and conversation. Snag a fresh bagel — the Everything Bagel is a bestseller thanks to sesame and poppy seeds, garlic and onion — or indulge in their legendary Matzo Ball soup. Head down the block for some retail therapy. A handblown glassybaby is a perfect gift with choices such as “Friendship,” “BFF” and “Cherish.” Around the corner, a friendship fashion moment awaits you at clothing boutique La Ree. Whether you’re looking for weekend essentials or something for a night on the town, La Ree offers an outfit for every occasion.

All in the Family

From tots to the young at heart, Bellevue is a virtual playground of adventures. KidsQuest Children’s Museum is a wonderland of fun with regular exhibits such as puppet theater, train table, face painting and pirate palooza. Special events include the Halloween Spooktacular (October 24) and regular Parents’ Nights Out with educational themes and special activities for kids — Black Light Science (September 21), Creepy Chemistry (October 19) and Fossil Discovery (November 16). When hunger inevitably strikes, Lunchbox Laboratory is guaranteed to satisfy every appetite. The kid’s menu offers kid-sized burgers, grilled cheese and homemade corndogs. Older kids will relish the chance to build their own burger with fixings ranging from cream cheese to fried eggs. Throw in a side of housemade tots or Mac Du Jour and the only thing left will be a post-dinner nap!

Game Days

It’s that time of year again — football season! If you are unable to make it to CenturyLink Field, Downtown Bellevue has many great football watching venues. At 520 Bar and Grill their seven TVs are always tuned in to the Seahawks and Huskies games. Every Thursday during football season swing by to see (and hear) the live broadcast of The Mike Holmgren Show, airing 3 – 5 p.m. on 950 KJR-AM. They take reservations and serve their happy hour menu during games. Bellevue Brewing Company has a 19’x10’ projection wall and 6 additional monitors for viewing pleasure. During the game enjoy one — or two — of their highly anticipated fall beers including a new KZOK beer, Fresh Hop Ale and Double Red IPA. Plan ahead and reserve their hospitality room for private viewing. Have fun, be safe and arrive early to fully enjoy your game day!

Caring for the Community

BY DEANNA DUFF

For many people, planning dinner is more complicated than restaurant reservations or grocery store trips. Thousands of Bellevue community members do not know where their next meal will come from. In 2015, Hopelink — a nonprofit serving those in need — served nearly 6,000 individuals at their Bellevue Foodbank and Emergency Services Center.

“Many people say how they never thought they’d personally be in need,” says Kris Betker, of Hopelink. “It’s amazing how quickly life can change. You can lose your job, become sick or just become unable to make ends meet.”

Learn about organizations feeding those in need and how you can help.

Hopelink

Hopelink’s Bellevue location is its second largest of five Puget Sound locations. Clients include all ages with a particular emphasis on school-aged children during summer months. According to Betker, nearly 20% of Bellevue children qualify for free or reduced lunch and breakfast. During school breaks, this leaves many kids hungry. Hopelink accepts donations with a particular need for non-perishable foods such as peanut butter and canned goods, which stores are less likely to donate. Hope-Link.org.

Bellevue LifeSpring

Founded in 1911, LifeSpring has served Bellevue for 105 years. Their Emergency Food and Basic Needs Pantry delivers groceries directly to households. All donations are welcome, but contact LifeSpring if you’re interested in focused help. LifeSpring endeavors to serve all food needs from cultural to dietary, allergies and more. They also sponsor the Breaktime-Mealtime program serving children boxed breakfasts and lunches during school breaks. During the 2015–2016 school year 128,000 meals were provided. For $25, a child is fed for a week. To learn more about Adopt-a-Box, visit BellevueLifeSpring.org.

lettuce, eggplant, tomatoes, raspberries, peaches, bread, jam and more. The total food donated since the program's inception exceeds 66,000 pounds. "Especially operating in Bellevue, there are misconceptions that it's a well-to-do area and everyone can afford food. There are many people in need and everyone deserves access to good food," says Natalie Evans, market manager. A new program was introduced in 2016. The community is now encouraged to donate food via public bins at the farmers market.

Seastar Restaurant and John Howie Steak

Chef John Howie is passionate about eradicating hunger. For 14 years, Howie, his family, friends and a volunteer staff host 400-500 individuals for an elegant Thanksgiving meal at Seastar at no charge to guests. He partners with community organizations such as Bellevue LifeSpring, Hopelink, YMCA and more to extend invitations to those in need. He also leads the Kick Hunger Challenge for Food Lifeline. In partnership with the Seattle Seahawks, he raises money for local food banks. In addition to fundraising dinners and auctions, individuals can visit his restaurants for periodic cocktail and food promotions with proceeds benefiting the cause. For updates and details, visit JohnHowieSteak.com or SeastarRestaurant.com.

Homeward Pet Adoption Center

Families lacking food often extends to hungry pets. "The food banks we work with estimate that 90% of the families utilizing their services have pets," says Terri Inglis, executive director, Homeward Pet. "They're also struggling to feed their furry friends and will often feed their pets before themselves." In 2015, Homeward Pet donated upwards of 50,000 pounds of pet food to Puget Sound food banks. Needs include dry kibble, canned food and even kitty litter. Even half-used, opened bags of dry food are welcome — donate rather than discard food if your pet changes tastes, diet or develops allergies. For donation locations and further details, visit

Fashion Sense

Q&A with Independent Fashion Designer Phuong Nguyen

The illustrious Fashion Week at The Bellevue Collection offers an avenue to experience the fashion world in a Pacific Northwest setting.

To kick off fashion week, The Bellevue Collection will host its 5th annual Independent Designer Runway Show where featured upcoming designers showcase their collections and compete for a cash prize courtesy of the Kemper Freeman Family and The Bellevue Collection. Six months prior to this fashion showdown, select local designers are placed in a mentorship program designed to develop their unique style and refine their technique through the guidance of a panel of fashion industry insiders. The winning designer will have a look from their collection on display in a Fashion Frame at Bellevue Square.

The last designer who had one of their looks featured in the Fashion Frame was Phuong Nguyen. After a year filled with opportunity and growth, Nguyen chatted with us about her experience and her bridal line, Dream Dresses by P.M.N.

How did you get your start in the fashion industry? What sparked your passion for fashion?

I have been interested in fashion as long as I can remember, even as a young child. After graduating from the Art Institute of Seattle, I didn't know what niche I wanted to get into until I designed two gowns for my own wedding. The gowns were so amazing that many of my guests thought I should start designing them full-time, and that's how Dream Dresses by P.M.N. was born.

What were the most exciting parts of your experience in The Bellevue Collection's Independent Designer Runway Show?

I think that seeing my gowns on display at The Bellevue Collection was the most exciting part. Having shopped (and even worked) at The Bellevue Collection for quite some time, it is hard to describe how incredible it was to see my work on display.

What were the challenges?

The most challenging part was deciding which designs to put into the show.

How did you feel when you won?

At first, I didn't realize that they had even called my name. I was in total shock when I realized I had won, since I was competing with so many incredible designers. The rest of the night was an amazing blur of talking to people, interviews, and photos.

What kind of advice would you give to those interested in pursuing fashion design?

I would have to say that if fashion design is your passion, you should go for it. It's difficult, and the hours are long, but it's completely worth it. They say that if you love what you do, you will never work a day in your life, and I believe this 100 percent.

How has the past year been after winning the runway show? What have you been up to recently?

The year since winning the show has been amazing. I showed at FashionNXT in Portland and my work has been featured in numerous magazines and blogs, and I have had the privilege to work with many amazing photographers. Recently I have been focusing on setting up my own manufacturing which will allow me to both expand my custom line, as well as develop a line that I can wholesale to bridal boutiques across the country.

Ask Jesse Canedo what he does for a living and he'll tell you he is a "business advocate supporting everyone from first time business owners to global companies." Canedo moved from Texas a little over a year ago after landing his job at the City of Bellevue. He had never been to the Pacific Northwest, but the region seemed to fit his love for the outdoors, and he says Downtown is the perfect urban setting for his lifestyle. Canedo spoke to us about what he loves about Downtown and his hopes for the city.

What do you love most about being the City's Economic Development Manager?

The thing I love about my job is the breadth of people I get to interact with. There's this incredible amount of energy here and it's great to be a resource to these new businesses and tap into that energy.

Why did you choose to live in Downtown Bellevue?

I love urban neighborhoods and I wanted to be in Downtown Bellevue to be a user of the product that I'm marketing and selling. It's close to work—I'm lucky in my professional career that my commute has always been less than 15 minutes long. Today, I have a leisurely 10 minute walk to the office.

RESIDENCE: THE PALAZZO

OCCUPATION: ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

MANAGER, CITY OF BELLEVUE

What makes Downtown Bellevue unique?

The energy here is constantly changing and growing. There's still this half-finished canvas and untapped opportunity to create new experiences and traditions in Downtown Bellevue.

What are your hopes for the city?

Bellevue's already on a great trajectory and a lot of the things I'm hoping for are already coming true. But I'd like to see the city truly embrace its place as a video game development hub. Maybe even have a video game museum.

What would you like to see more of?

I know the transportation department is working on this, but I'd like to see more bike infrastructure. I'm a casual bike rider and so it would be nice to do that around Downtown Bellevue more.

Ideal weekend?

I'm a huge coffee guy so on Saturdays I drink coffee and catch up on reading. I probably caffeinate on a Saturday enough for the whole week ahead. I really like the coffee and the set up at Honor Coffee.

Favorite Happy Hour?

Daniel's Broiler or El Guacho.

Favorite Event?

The Bellevue Arts Fair weekend was really awesome. It's huge! I took my family there when they were visiting. My mom loves art.

Canedo is looking forward to seeing Downtown grow into its potential and he's eager to work with new businesses. If you're an aspiring business owner, he encourages you to get in touch via email at jcanedo@bellevuewa.gov or on LinkedIn.
